Innovation, engineered for what's next.

While August is traditionally associated with holidays and a slower pace in Italy, things did not stop at Comerio Ercole.

Throughout the summer, our teams remained active, continuing to support customers around the world, follow ongoing projects and keep engineering, production and service activities moving forward.

From the workshop to the offices, our people worked behind the scenes to ensure that deadlines were met, projects stayed on track and our customers could continue to rely on us.

August was also an opportunity to prepare for what lies ahead: new projects, new challenges and an intense autumn full of international events and meetings.

With several trade shows coming up, including Cinte Techtextil China, RubberTech China and the Global Polymer Summit, our teams have been getting everything ready to make the most of the opportunities ahead. Because at Comerio Ercole, taking a break doesn't mean standing still.
